Expression of that Organization or the President's Death.

The following resolutions were adopted by the Marion Club yesterday:

"Be it resolved, by the Marion Club of the city of Indianapolis, That by the un-timely death of our beloved President. William McKinley, our Nation has suffered a deep and terrible loss.

"The barbarous act of the assassin has the State fair grounds, Suitable music excited our horror and detestation, and language can but feebly express the grief which fills our hearts.

"President McKinley had reached the culminating point of his splendid political career. His whole life had been devoted to the service of the American people. They are blessed with peace, prosperity and bonor, which are the fruits of his wise and splendid statesmanship. "The Nation has come to a full realization of the strength and nobility of his character. It reposed the fullest confidence in his wisdom and ability to handle with honor and success the grave and difficult problems which confronted his administration. It loved and reverenced his manliness, his uprightness, his purity of life and his Christian fortitude. In his home life he illustrated those virtues which the American people delight to honor. His constant levotion to an invalid wife was romantic in its nature and beautiful to behold. "Plain and unassuming, but majestic ir the strength and simplicity of his character, he was enthroned in the hearts of his fellow-men. He was endowed with admirable poise and judgment, and with reserve power and strength which in the storm and stress of his eventful administration made him master of every occasion. "The deeds and achievements of the American people under his magnificent leadership wil make his administration one of the most notable and brilliant of American history. He was a loyal friend, a true patriot, a wise statesman, a peerless leader. a true Christian gentleman. Few of our American presidents have won, in so large measure, the homage and reverence of their fellow-men. 'He was a man; take him for all in all, we shall not look upon his like again.' Be it further "Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this club, and that an engrossed copy thereof be forwarded to the widow of our beloved President; and that, as a mark of respect and in honor of his memory the flag of this club remain
